

Would you like your product or service showcased before 1,000 of North Carolina's top business, civic and political leaders? Then act now to reserve a booth at the

NCCBI EXPO

March 20, 2002, at the Raleigh Convention and Conference Center
Limited space available. Registration deadline December 31, 2001.

The NCCBI Expo is a one-day trade show, 11 a.m. to 6 p.m., held during the Annual Meeting of N.C. Citizens for Business and Industry, North Carolina's largest business organization that serves as the state chamber of commerce. The Annual Meeting is attended by more than one thousand CEOs, leading educators, top elected officials and other prominent citizens.

Former Governor Jim Hunt called the NCCBI Annual Meeting "The most important meeting held in North Carolina each year." By exhibiting at the EXPO, you can showcase your company in front of the key people who make the major purchasing decisions for hundreds of businesses, professional firms, schools and universities, and state agencies.

● Booths are 10 feet by 10 feet area and include a skirted table.

● Cost is $300 for NCCBI member companies and non-profits, $450 for non-members.

● Each exhibitor receives a free luncheon ticket — a $50 value.

● The convention's evening reception, the event's most well-attended function, is held in the exhibit hall to promote high booth traffic. Open bar and free hors d'oeuvres for everyone.
